A Message from the Chief

The Greenville Police Department continues to provide the public with quality professional police services they have come to expect. Most recently, the Greenville Police Department has invested in two new technological resources we feel will better enable us to serve the public.

New Technology

Sirchie Krimesite Scope

The Krimesite Scope allows for a rapid search of latent prints using Reflective Ultra Violet Imaging Technology. It can be used day or night to locate untreated latent fingerprints on most surfaces, as well as photographing the print. The Krimescope will reduce the amount of time spent searching “blindly” for latent prints or processing areas where no latent fingerprints were deposited.

Computer Voice Stress Analyzer

The use of the Computer Voice Stress analyzer will allow trained officers to detect stress in a person’s voice when they are not being truthful. This may be used in addition to, or in conjunction with polygraph tests, which are currently performed by the State Bureau of Investigation. This will allow for more the more rapid detection of deception from suspects or witnesses during criminal investigations.

Traffic Tip of the Month

Using Turn Signals

Whenever you intend to turn or change lanes while driving, and other drivers are affected by your movements, remember to always use your signals. Make sure that all equipment, such as brake lights, signals, and taillights on your vehicle are in proper working condition.

No Shortcuts

Travelling across private property, such as gas stations, drug stores, etc. to avoid traffic lights is a violation of City Code 10-2-95. If you are caught, you will receive a ticket for a fine, so take a few extra minutes to wait at the traffic light!

Drug Arrest Registry

If you are an employer or a landlord, you may want to take advantage of a new feature on the Greenville Police Department's website. A registry of individuals who have been arrested for the sale and distribution of illegal substances has been created as an information tool. Keep in mind, that you will need to obtain a copy of the arrest reports to verify specific individuals. The listing of the names indicate an arrest only, and not necessarily a conviction. The police department's website can be located at the City homepage: <http://www.ci.greenville.nc.us>.
